

Black Family Day

Sunday 7th Oct 2001

Why?

It's a chance to repair broken relationships between our family and extended family, other families, friends, colleagues and acquaintances respectively, for the future of the younger generation.

Who?

Everyone within the community must ensure they make contact with members of their family, especially those who they have not made contact with for some time, whether near or far or for whatever reason.

Absent parents and children should make every conceivable effort to contact their children and families, respectively, with a view to re-establishing links and strengthening their relationships.

One Minute Silence (12 noon) to remember...

Those who suffer in the hands of Black on Black violence, Racism and to remember those who are homeless.

Where is it taking place?

Hear there and absolutely anywhere, no matter where you are on this day, home or abroad, all it takes is a phone call, a knock on the door, an email, a card, a party, an evening out, a gathering, a picnic or a thought...to simply Remember, Reflect, Repair & Respect the most important thing in society...your family. What will you be doing on Black Family Day? Sunday 7th October 2001.
